

Lee questioned about housing, employment

By ERIN BAKER
Universe Staff Writer

Before President Rex E. Lee could answer questions at his student question and answer session Thursday, he received a birthday singing telegram from "Clunkerbell," a tutu-clad fairy bearing balloons and a birthday hat.

The ELWC Memorial Lounge audience sang "Happy Birthday" to President Lee, who turned 57, before he fielded questions from more than a dozen students on topics from academic freedom to student housing.

Joe Kerry, chair of the Student Advisory Council, said the question and answer session was the fifth of President Lee's administration. He said issues and concerns brought up by students at the session will be addressed by SAC. "Positive and concrete things do come out of this,"

Jason Brush, a student employee at the Cougarreates, expressed concerns over a recent policy change requiring students working for BYU during Spring/Summer terms to be registered for at least one class.

One problem Brush described was being required to pay full-credit price for a half-credit PE class.

President Lee said he would look into the matter. When Brush said he had got the "run-around" from the administration, Lee said, "Yes, we're very good at that."

Concerns in the sociology department regarding how a student's standing would be affected if they published in the controversial magazine, "Sunstone," was brought up by Joanna Brooks. President Lee said it would not affect students' standing in any way.

He said the First Presidency statement regarding intellectual forums on religious topics was not directed at BYU. "It is a matter that each individual Church member must interpret for himself or herself," he said about the statement.

President Lee said a "sensitive, thoughtful letter" from the sociology department was simply a request for his personal views on the issue of academic freedom. "It is not a university issue," he said.

Student Kevin Livingstone addressed student housing, suggesting the BYU Off-Campus Housing Office take more of a stand, either by imposing rent controls or just disbanding altogether.

"If the off-campus housing office is there to protect student renters, they should either go all the way or totally back off and not just sit in the middle and say, 'Well, you have a desk, but we don't care what kind of rent you get charged,'" Livingstone said.

President Lee said he would be very reluctant to get involved with rent ceilings because that would create more problems than they would solve. However, he said it is appropriate for BYU to deal with the adequacy of physical facilities in off-campus housing.

Another student questioned the lack of quality academic counseling at BYU.

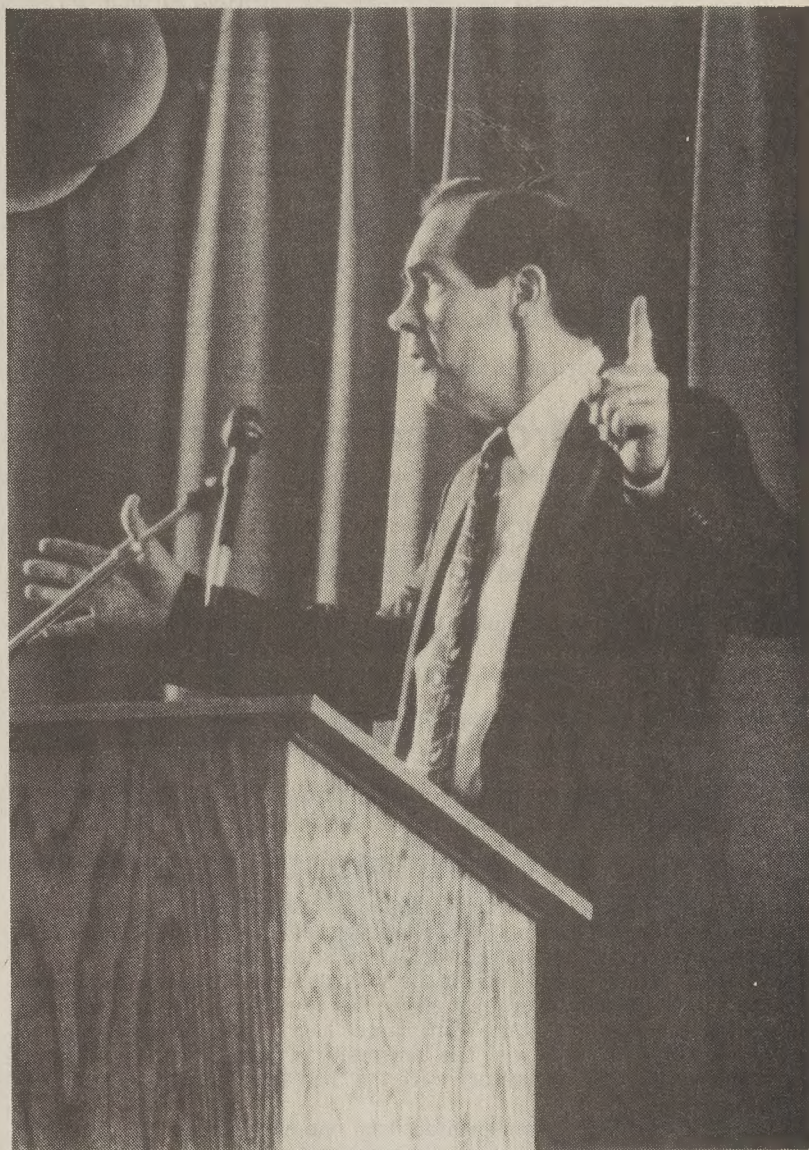

"This is an enormously complex problem," President Lee said. "This university, like any other, needs more resources."

"Most of the problems I could solve, I suppose, if I had a whole bunch of money. It's my job to get the resources that we need, and we'll do our best," President Lee said.

Students wanted to know why candidates for BYUSA president are selected internally before being elected by the student body. President Lee said he has enjoyed discussion about open elections, but that he is "fifty-fifty" on the issue.

Lee was pleased with the 27 percent voter turnout in the BYUSA elections, but he thought it could have been a lot higher by increasing student consciousness of the importance of having a responsible student voice.

President Lee commended BYU students for taking part in the elections and showing interest in serious matters of student government. He also congratulated Jason Hall on being elected as BYUSA president and thanked Amy Miner for her service.

House OKs wage-earner tax cut that helps tax rich

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House on Thursday approved a temporary wage-earner tax cut for 90 million wage earners that would be financed by a 10 percent increase in taxes on the top 1 percent of Americans.

The final vote on the bill was 221-197. Bush's own plan was rejected on a 218-212 party-line vote of 264-166.

The middle class has been waiting for a public promise to trickle down for the last 10 years, while the rich, the poor got poorer in the middle class just got richer," said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

Bill Mickey Edwards of Oklahoma, chairman of the Republican Committee, countered that the bill was designed not to hurt the economy but to "tax the rich to balance the budget, raise the deficit and elect the president."

He called the House action "terribly political." He added, "I think the bill will turn it around."

A Democratic substitute for the bill was accepted on a 221-210 vote before the final roll call was taken. Forty-six Democrats voted for the bill.

The legislation now goes to the Senate Finance Committee, which next begins writing what likely will be a similar version. As a result, Republicans insist, there is no chance it will become law because Bush will veto it.

Newt Gingrich of Georgia, the House whip, and other opponents of the bill ridiculed the maximum $400-a-year tax cut that wage earners would collect from the bill.

Steny Hoyer of Maryland, the Democratic caucus chairman, said the bill presented a 10 percent tax reduction for a $30,000-a-year family.

BYU honors LDS Public Affairs

By KATHLEEN O'LEARY
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU Communications Department presented a Focus on Excellence Award to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Public Affairs Department at the communications symposium Thursday.

David Forsyth, chair of BYU's Communications Department, said LDS Public Affairs has demonstrated an exemplary effort to promote Christian ideals.

Bruce Olsen, managing director of LDS Public Affairs, accepted the award and gave credit to present and past staff members. "We stand on the shoulders of those who went before us," he said.

Larry Macfarlane, a visiting professor of communications, also spoke of some of the problems the Public Affairs Department deals with.

He said department members have had to work with Caribbean nations that believe the Church is a racist group. They had to explain why blacks were not allowed to hold the priesthood before 1978. In Colorado, they had to explain the purpose of the temple to anti-Mormons.

Olsen said Elder James E. Faust is one of the four members of the Quorum of the Twelve who help direct public affairs. He said Elder Faust has suggested ways to meet the department's challenges.

Elder Faust has said the public affairs department should not be excessively preoccupied with what others think of the Church, but rather to do what is right for the right reasons, Olsen said.

Olsen quoted Elder Faust, who said "I think we can properly focus on what we believe, what we try to teach, and what we are trying to be and ought to be. We have the responsibility of saying it right and putting the best face on the Lord's business. But it has to be genuine and it has to be honest."

Olsen said another challenge his department faces is in correcting misinformation. For example, a Kirtland cult leader was identified as LDS after being arrested. Public Affairs talked to newspapers and sent prominent members of the Church to speak on talk shows to clear up the mistake.

Newspaper people like to be accurate and do not want to hurt people, Olsen said. They were helpful in correcting the mistake. Although the damage had already been done, getting it corrected prevents future problems, he said.

"We try very hard to be forthright and accurate," Olsen said. Public Affairs tries to show people the Church has a tremendous way of life and can provide answers to many of life's questions, but is still working toward perfection.

Drug war continues, but U.S. can't foot bill

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — President Bush and six Latin American leaders concluded a drug summit Thursday with renewed pledges to combat narcotics, but Bush cautioned that the United States could not give its neighbors all the help they requested.

"These are not easy times for the United States," Bush said at a news conference at the close of the one-day meeting.

Bush called drug trafficking "a new kind of transnational enemy."

"Make no mistake," the president said, "Defeat the traffickers, we will."

He said there had been significant progress during the past two years, saying drug use among young people in the United States was down by 60 percent. Bush said he and the other leaders had discussed improving efforts to halt shipments of drugs from Latin America to the United States and development of alternative crops to give coca growers an economic basis for moving away from drugs.

"Farmers who once grew coca in Bolivia are exporting pineapples and bananas," said Bush. "Peru's economy is beginning to grow again. And the Andean states will expand trade with the United States under this new Andean Trade Preference Initiative that I signed into law last December."

When a reporter from Latin America asked the U.S. president if he was prepared to increase assistance, Bush replied, "The responsibility of the president of the United States is first to the people of the United States."

Unrest among Soviet troops sparks rioting at space center

Associated Press

MOSCOW — Poor food, hazing and beatings helped set the stage for riots by hundreds of soldiers at the former Soviet Union's main space center, newspapers said Thursday.

Three people were killed in the violence Monday and Tuesday at the Baikonur Cosmodrome, where angry soldiers reportedly looted supplies and burned barracks. The unrest reflects deep problems in the former Soviet army, including falling morale and mistreatment of recruits.

The riots involved several hundred of the 17,000 soldiers assigned to construction jobs at the cosmodrome, about 1,560 miles southeast of Moscow. Construction troops traditionally are the worst fed, housed and clothed units in the army.

The soldiers stole 17 cars, looted food supplies and warehouses, and burned four barracks, according to the Nezavisimaya Gazeta (Independent Newspaper) and Interfax news agency. Inside one charred barracks, three bodies were found. Two were identified as Kazakh conscripts, and one remained unidentified Thursday, the reports said.

The spark that set off the rioting was the arrest of a recruit on charges that his fellow soldiers considered unjust, the ITAR-Tass news agency reported. "The reasons for what happened go much deeper," the agency said.

Last December, construction troops began running away from Baikonur because of hazing, beatings and extortion of money by older soldiers and officers, ITAR-Tass said.

"Frequently, soldiers were deprived of hot food and water," the newspaper wrote. "No attention was paid to protests."

Russian parliament members and mothers of Soviet servicemen who died in peacetime have alleged that hazing of recruits is widespread in the army.

Safety should be priority for pedestrians, drivers

By ELISA R. WHITEHEAD
Universe Staff Writer

Car dodging is becoming a dangerous practice used by BYU students trekking across campus and city streets. City and campus police agree pedestrians and drivers should obey Provo's traffic laws for safety's sake.

Provo Police Officer Danny Cornell said it is the responsibility of both pedestrians and drivers to be aware of who has the right of way. Cornell said many students, because they are from out of state, are not aware of the traffic laws in Utah, but it is their responsibility to know the law.

Bill Pray, public relations assistant for University Police, said it is the driver's responsibility to stop and let a pedestrian at a crosswalk cross the street. However, pedestrians must obey traffic lights.

Aubree Collins, 19, a freshman majoring in German from Sandy, said, "I find (vehicles) don't stop even when (pedestrians) are in the crosswalk." Collins said she has to dodge cars in order to get across the street.

Cornell said Provo has a lot of pedestrian traffic walking against signals. "By walking against traffic signals," he said, "you are endangering yourself and the person in the vehicle."

Karen Pomerantz, a 20-year-old music sophomore from Alpena, Mich., said drivers here don't usually stop for pedestrians, but "students are stupid if they don't use a crosswalk." Cornell said although the city hasn't had too many problems with jaywalkers, there have been seven auto-pedestrian accidents so far this year in Provo. He said most of the time, accidents result in the vehicle's failure to yield the right of way.

Cornell said a pedestrian caught jaywalking can be fined up to $55. He said how much a driver is charged for failing to give the pedestrian the right of way depends on the situation.

Pray said the problem areas on campus are the crosswalks outside the Ernest L. Wilkinson Center, the N. Eldon Tanner Building and the BYU Carillon Bell Tower.

Pray said students who jaywalk on campus can be fined $25. Cars failing to stop for pedestrians at crosswalks can be fined $45.

Although it is not at the top of their priority list, Pray said campus police enforce vehicles yielding to crosswalks. He said they also ticket students caught jaywalking.

Justine Sirken, BYUSA's ombudsman, said there have been four to five minor accidents on campus in the last six months as a result of pedestrians or vehicles not yielding the right of way.

Serbian leader declares end to civil war

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — President Slobodan Milosevic of Serbia, who led his republic into a ruinous conflict with Croatia in a failed attempt to hold Yugoslavia together, declared the war over Thursday.

In another sign of peace, Croatian President Franjo Tudjman ordered the demobilization of 20,000 reservists, news agencies reported. An aide said the order would take effect immediately and was the first step in a plan to rebuild war-torn Croatia.

The first demobilized soldiers will be civil engineers and construction workers, said the aide, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Milosevic's declaration appeared to be a response to mounting opposition inside Serbia over the war's human and economic toll. Many Serbs have turned against the once popular leader and are demanding his resignation.

"Today we can say that most of the agony in our country is over, and that conditions now exist for the peaceful and democratic solution of the Yugoslav crisis," Milosevic told Serbia's parliament as a U.N.-mediated truce stretched to nearly two months.

The first of 14,000 peacekeepers are to begin arriving in the next two weeks to enforce the truce while political negotiations settle the future shape of the patchwork Balkan nation.

Up to 10,000 people died in six months of fighting before the truce took effect in Croatia on Jan. 3.

Home sales drop; economy indecisive

WASHINGTON — Existing home sales fell 1.5 percent in January, the first decline in four months, and claims for jobless benefits rose for a second straight week in mid-February, reports said Thursday.

The negative figures, combined with recent reports of a rebound in factory orders and climbing retail and automobile sales, showed the crosscurrents buffeting the economy.

"It's an economy that's gasping for air," said economist Mark Zandi of Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa. "Sometimes it's below water and sometimes it's above. There's no clear sign the recovery is imminent."

Most analysts contend that the housing recession ended in January 1991 and that the housing sector has assumed its traditional role of leading the economy out of the recession.

The 1.5 percent decline in January was the first since a 2.5 percent drop in September.

Technique may help transplant patients

WASHINGTON — Hearts transplanted between incompatible lab mice can be protected from rejection by a technique that creates a molecular shield against attack from the immune system, a new study shows.

In a work to be published Friday in the journal, Science, researchers report they used two types of laboratory antibodies to prevent the host immune system from recognizing that the transplanted hearts were foreign tissue.

Dr. Mitsunori Isobe, now with the University of Tokyo, said his research team used two types of laboratory mice that had significantly different immune systems.

This means that tissue transplanted from one mouse strain to the other normally would be rejected, just as an immune system would attack and reject an invading bacteria.

In some of the mice, hearts were transplanted between the strains with no attempt to prevent rejection.

In others, the receiving mice were injected for six days with what are called monoclonal antibodies. These are laboratory-made antibodies that block the action of specific molecules in the host.

Tactical weapon removal proceeds in CIS

WASHINGTON — Nuclear scientists who worked in the Soviet weapons program aren't likely to sell their expertise to Third World countries, senior officials from the Commonwealth of Independent States said Thursday.

"So far, we don't know of a single example" of a nuclear scientist leaving the former Soviet Union, said Yevgeny Avrorin, chief scientist at the Russian nuclear arms complex at Chelyabinsk-70.

Avrorin was one of several senior CIS officials who met with American scientists to discuss nuclear weapons issues at a seminar sponsored by the Federation of American Scientists and the Natural Resources Defense Council.

One of the officials, Gen. Sergei Zelentsov, said removal of tactical weapons from all former Soviet republics except Belarus and Ukraine is complete.

Zelentsov said the process should be completed in May. Geographic consolidation of the nuclear arsenal of the former Soviet Union has been a major goal of the Bush administration.

Prison escapees make 'sewer' getaway

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va. — Three killers' tunnel to freedom under the wall of the West Virginia Penitentiary included a string of lights, electric fans for ventilation and even a radio.

After digging for months, the killers made their escape in broad daylight on Feb. 19.

They made a ladder from steel tubing, wing nuts and bolts, and covered the entrance to their excavation with a disk of plywood, the letters "S E W E R" chiseled out to resemble a manhole cover.

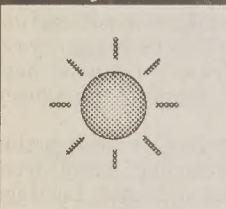

From the dirt floor of a prison greenhouse, they went down 16 feet, then burrowed 32 feet under the sandstone wall of the Civil War-era prison before returning to the surface.

"They apparently put a lot of work into it," said State Police 1st Sgt. Peter Lake. "They've had a lot of luck. Hopefully, that will change soon."

It did for one of the escapees. Fred D. Hamilton, 34, was arrested Wednesday near Hinton, Okla., on a charge of attempted robbery. The others remain at large, however.

Legislature sends 300 bills to Bangerter to sign or veto

By RAYMOND L. SEWELL
Universe Staff Writer

When the clock struck midnight Wednesday, Utah lawmakers stopped mid-debate, leaving all unfinished business for next year as the 1992 State Legislature came to a close.

With the closing of the Legislature, more than 300 bills now go to Gov. Bangerter's desk to be signed into law.

or vetoed, while everyone who works at the capital goes home.

Some bills that passed in this year's session include:

- A bill standardizing school zones statewide and increasing the fines for speeding in school zones. This bill, if signed into law, increases the minimum fine from $35 to $50 and the maximum fine from $90 to $500. It also appropriates $500,000 for the purchase of new signs and signals for school zones.

- A bill outlawing the use of corporal punishment in Utah schools and child care centers. This bill also sets up guidelines for school districts on how to deal with the use of force in the classroom.

- Lawmakers got tough on gangs, passing bills aimed at reducing gang violence. The bills make it illegal to possess or discharge weapons on or around school grounds, and can make parents jointly liable with children who vandalize others' property.

- In an effort to insure that Utah does not become the nation's dumping ground for toxic waste, lawmakers raised the price of dumping the waste in Utah by raising the price of dumping toxic waste from $20 to $35 per ton.

- Legislators passed bills making it easier for nurses and doctors to obtain and pay for educational loans, providing they agree to work in underdeveloped areas of the state.

- A bill to set up a horse racing commission to help rural horse racers and breeders. A bill to legalize pari-mutuel betting was struck down earlier in the session.

- Lawmakers then passed a $3.7 billion budget, closely following Gov. Bangerter's proposed budget.

UVCC phasing out plastics as part of recycling plans

By KATIE L. STASTNY
Universe Staff Writer

In an effort to preserve the environment, Utah Valley Community College's student government is encouraging students, faculty and administrators to recycle.

As a part of this effort, Associated Students of UVCC and the college's food services have instituted a plan to cut down on the use of polystyrene and paper products in their cafeteria.

Last semester's Trade and Science Senator Jeff McDonald said he saw a need to start a comprehensive recycling program on campus and found that recycling in the cafeteria was one of the best places to begin.

"We wanted to tell the students that the best way to recycle is to 'pre-cycle' — don't create the waste in the first place," McDonald said. He said all of the waste created in the cafeteria each day could be prevented by using reusable dishware.

Comparing costs of purchasing disposables with costs of reusables, McDonald found that it would take three years of not using polystyrene products to fully pay for the reusable dishware.

As much as $12,000 in polystyrene products is thrown away each year in the cafeteria, ASUVCC President Ken Patey said.

The project will help to cut these costs in addition to helping protect the environment, he said.

This semester, food services has been using the reusable dishware more and more, gradually increasing the use of soup bowls and dessert plates, along with the use of silverware and meal plates, until reusables are all that are used, said Jana Buckner, ASUVCC's earth science representative.

One of the things BYU did was con-game," Reid said. "We did a nice job overall on Phil Lott." Reid rotated Call, Heslop and Mark Santiago on Lott to hold him to 1-11 shooting.

But it wasn't only defense that won it for BYU. After missing their first shot of the second half, the Cougars hit 15 in a row, barely missing the NCAA record of 16-17. Although they cooled off in the final few minutes of the game, they still finished the half shooting 72 percent. The Cougars opened up two 23-point leads in the second half, at 66-43 and again at 70-47.

Junior forward David Astle entered the game for the first time with 11:55 remaining. Astle, a crowd favorite, ignited the small Marriott Center crowd of 15,218 when he finger-rolled a layup to put the Cougars up 59-41. Two minutes later he excited the fans again by grabbing a rebound and rifling a pass downcourt to Gary Trost, who caught the ball in stride and slammed it home.

Astle did it again 32 seconds later, grabbing a rebound and giving the outlet pass to Heslop, who then passed downcourt to Trost for a repeat dunk.

Nixon said it was an important game for the Cougars because it kept them tied for the lead in the Western Athletic Conference.

He was concerned, however, that more fans did not turn out for such an important game, but said he appreciated the support of those fans who were there. "When you get the crowd behind you it's a great feeling," he said.

Trost expressed similar concern.
"That's disappointing to me as a player that people didn't want to come out."

"It's disappointing to our team," Reid said. "I think our team deserved better than that."

Nixon led all scorers with 17 points.
Woodard led Hawaii with 15.

BYU lacrosse team to play
first home game of season

By ALAN THOMPSON
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU lacrosse team opens its home season Saturday at 2 p.m.
against Colorado College at Haws Field.

The Cougars hope the home crowd will help them bounce back from two recent road losses.

"We should do a lot better this week," BYU lacrosse coach Greg Saunders said.

Saunders said the Cougars have practiced outside, something they were unable to do before their first two games.

Saunders said practicing outside and the return of injured sophomore midfieldman Matt Clawson will help the Cougars play better this week.

The Cougars began their season with losses to the University of California at Santa Barbara, 13-4, and the University of Arizona, 10-9, in overtime.

Against Arizona, BYU goalie Scott Cothran made 15 saves, including two incredible saves in the final minutes, to keep the game tied and send it into overtime. However, despite Cothran's efforts, Arizona salvaged a 10-9 overtime victory.

Senior Darren Greenhalgh led the Cougars in scoring with three goals.
Junior Marc Fuller added two goals and one assist.

Against UC Santa Barbara the Cougars led 4-2 after the first half.
But Santa Barbara took advantage of Cougar penalties, giving the Gauchos man-up advantages in the second half to amass 13 goals and hold the Cougars scoreless the rest of the way for the victory.

Marty Wescott, a junior from Aurora, Colo., led the team in scoring with two goals and Darren and Bryce Greenhalgh, also from Issaquah, Wash., each contributed one goal apiece.

"Defensively we played really well.
We just didn't take our offense with us," Saunders said.

Money allotted for events center

By C. TED NGUYEN
Universe Staff Writer

The Utah Legislature appropriated $4 million to build Utah Valley Community College's Special Event Center during its last day in session Wednesday.

Rep. Norm Nelson, R-Orem, said Utah County residents are one step closer to having an events center in the county instead of driving up to events in Salt Lake City because a $100 million bonding bill was passed.

The 6,500 seat multipurpose center is to be finished in the fall of 1995, costing an estimated $23 million, said Val Peterson, UVCC's college relations director. Construction will begin in spring 1993. "Now we can go ahead with the project to fulfill the needs of the community," he said.

He said the completed center will serve the needs of Utah Valley and will include a 6,000 square foot exhibition area for conventions, meetings, dinners and other activities.

The center will also house a weight room, racquetball courts, locker rooms and offices.

Last year, county voters approved by a three-to-one margin a one percent tax on restaurant food in the county to be used to fund the center.

Gary Herbert, Utah county commission chairman, said the county will issue a $7.75 million bond to supplement state funding for the center.

Herbert said, "The center will be a great boom for the community, enhancing what the county can offer such as concerts, sporting events, auto shows and things we haven't been able to have in the past unless we drove up to Salt Lake."

The Orem City Council passed a resolution earlier this month to ask the Legislature for funding to complete the center.

Citizens discuss future of Utah Lake

By DONALD A. LEAVITT
Universe Staff Writer

Citizens gathered at a public hearing in Provo Wednesday night to talk about the possible development of Utah Lake.

More than 200 people showed up to voice their concerns, opinions and recommendations about possible development of Utah Lake.

Utah County and Mountainlands Association of Governments are holding the public hearings to discuss proposals about the lake. The meeting in Provo is the second of four meetings scheduled throughout the county.

"We want to try to determine the economic and recreational benefits of Utah Lake to Utah County," said Gary Herbert, chairman of the Utah County Board of Commissioners.

"Utah Lake is the greatest unused asset in the county."

"What we're really looking for now is the feelings and thoughts from people of this county as to what they want to do with Utah Lake," said Homer Chandler, Mountainlands Association of Governments director.

Several scenarios for improving the lake have been suggested. One is to build a causeway across the lake from the I-15 exit near UVCC to Pelican Point. This would provide quicker access to the lake's west side.

Also, the lake could be dredged and the debris used to build an island near the causeway or peninsulas out into the lake on the west side. The island or peninsulas would be sites for residential, recreational and industrial development.

A road and parkway could also be built around the lake. Recreational sites around the lake would also be constructed. Another proposal is to build a dike across Goshen Bay or Provo Bay to decrease the surface area of the lake and make it deeper.

The public voiced a variety of opinions and suggestions during the discussion. One proposal is to first develop Provo Harbor so revenue can start to be generated for further development.

Leap year birthday helps man stay young

By PAMELA HAWKES
Universe Staff Writer

Paul Hollingsworth celebrates his 15th birthday this year. His son is 11 years old. When Paul celebrates his 16th birthday, his son will also.

Paul was born Feb. 29, 1932, in Preston, Idaho. His mother said she had not thought her baby would be born on leap day, although her due date was March 1.

She said she didn't even think about his birthday being on leap day until he was old enough to ask why his birthday wasn't on the calendar.

Paul said he likes having a birthday only every four years now, although when he was younger, his brothers would tease him by saying he wasn't going to have a birthday because there was no 29th.

Paul's grandmother used to tell him that his birthday happened while he was sleeping. He said, "I wanted to stay up all night long to catch it."

If having a birthday only every 4 years wasn't different enough, Paul has a sister who was the New Year's Day baby in Preston and a home teacher who was also born on leap day.

Paul said this home teacher helped him see how wonderful not having a birthday could be. The home teacher, Hugh Kidd, from Preston, Idaho, still home teaches his mother.

Paul said he likes the years when he doesn't have a birthday better because he has a "birthweek"—everyone gives him special attention all week long.

He has received as many as six cakes for one birthday—just one of the added benefits of not having a birthday every year.

One of Paul's most memorable birthdays was his fourth. His friends all came to the family farm in Preston, Idaho, and they had a "baby party." He said the gifts he remembers receiving were pacifiers and baby bottles, including the milk.

Paul said he also remembers his third birthday. He was living in Arizona and he had a pet monkey, which he named Oscar Mondrogen Dirkevitch.

Before his second birthday, Paul remembers being upset that he had no day for his birthday.

His brothers made him feel so bad, his mother set aside Feb. 28th as his birthday.

No shortage up there

Few visitors have interpreted this sign on East Campus Drive so literally. The sign is between the Harris Fine Arts Center and Heritage Halls. The balloon, piloted by Tom Heal, general manager of Mail Works in Provo, hovered low over Deseret Towers, Heritage Halls and the HFAC Thursday morning. Heal uses the balloon for selling rides as well as for advertising.

Law students put abilities on trial

By HOLLY J. POWELL
Universe Staff Writer

Should a drug kingpin be given the death penalty if he has not committed a homicide?

This issue faces two teams of students at the 18th Annual Moot Court Competition, said Catherine Coop, 23, a second-year law student from Sacramento, Calif.

The competition begins today at 2 p.m. in the Moot Court Room of the J. Reuben Clark Law School.

Kathy D. Pullins, assistant dean of the law school, said the students spend long hours preparing for this competition.

The members of the teams are chosen on the basis of their scholastic achievement and their previous demonstration of skills in Moot Court Exercises, said Steve Hayden, director of the BYU's national team.

The competition is composed of two teams, a petitioner team defending the drug kingpin and a respondent team arguing against him. This case takes place on the appellate level so there is no jury, Hayden said.

Thomas Low, 25, a second-year law student from Los Angeles, Calif., said students prepare for the moot court by researching cases which support their argument.

Coop said students prepare a brief and submit it to the judges of the contest. The next step is to defend the brief.

"It is a very intense competition," Coop said. "You must be able to think on your feet."

The members of the respondent team are Low, Kirk Broberg and Derek Pullan.

The petitioner team is made up of Coop, Craig Aramaki and Ian Forrest.

The judges for the contest are J. Clifford Wallace, Chief Judge, Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals; Christine Cook Nettlesheim, Judge, D.C. Court of Claims; Michael D. Zimmerman, Justice, Utah Supreme Court; Thomas Steffen, Justice, Nevada Supreme Court; and Gregory K. Orme, Judge, Utah Court of Appeals.

Awards will be given for the best team, best brief and best oral argument, Low said.

SAC selects new chair

By L. M. ROBBINS
Universe Staff Writer

After weeks of campaigning and nearly two hours of debate, 1992-93 Student Advisory Council representatives elected Steve Turley to the position of chair Thursday evening.

Turley, 23, a junior from Seattle, Wash., double majoring in philosophy and English, won with more than 50 percent of the vote.

Turley served as SAC representative for the College of Humanities in 1991-92.

Turley said he really didn't expect to win but credited his success to hard work.

He said his major SAC goals for the upcoming school year are to define policy, create an open forum for discussion and "reevaluate ourselves if we are part of the problem."

As SAC chair, Turley will also be a member of the BYUSA President's Council.

This will be Turley's first experience working with the rest of BYUSA.

"It's going to take some time to find my position in BYUSA because I started in and grew up with the SAC," Turley said.

"My big downfall is lack of experience, but my strength is having a different perspective and a big background of working with clubs and college councils."

BYUSA President-elect Jason Hall and current SAC chair Joe Kerry expressed optimism about next year's SAC.

"I know that next year's council will make an even bigger difference under the tutelage of Steve Turley," Kerry said.

BYUSA/SAC Coordinator David Lucero said 33 of the possible SAC representatives voted. Four positions are still available.

LDS musical to celebrate Relief Society anniversary

By PAMELA HAWKES
Universe Staff Writer

In celebration of the sesquicentennial of the Relief Society of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, a dramatized musical narrative called "The Call to Zion" will be performed Sunday at 6:30 p.m. at the Provo Tabernacle.

"The Call to Zion," written by Jay-nann Morgan Payne, was derived from journals and letters of Welsh pioneers who joined the LDS Church in Wales and came to America to join the Saints, said producer Ronald Dennis.

The production is a series of small skits on the lives of converts to Mormonism in mid-nineteenth century Wales. It focuses mainly on women, with each convert telling her or his own story, Dennis said.

In addition to conversion stories, the musical contains ocean voyages, Indian encounters and omen who didn't understand Welsh. "The courage, conviction and humor of these Welsh pioneers is legendary and embody many stories that wrench and warm the heart," Payne said.

Several of the Welsh women and men portrayed in "The Call to Zion" are ancestors of President David O. McKay and Elder Marvin J. Ashton, Dennis said.

Payne has made numerous presentations of other figures from LDS history, such as Lucy Mack Smith, the mother of the Prophet Joseph Smith, Dennis said.

The costumes were designed by Carma deJong Anderson, a BYU graduate student in theater and film.
